Livestock Zimbabwe Update: 26th February 2021

since 1971

OVERVIEW

The Zimbabwe Poultry Association has been notified by the International Egg Commission (IEC) that the United Nations are organising a Food Systems Summit in March to co-ordinate an attempt to get plant-based diets endorsed as mainstream by global bodies, such as the World Health Organisation. This represents the largest issue currently facing the egg industry as the movement to eliminate animal protein from the human diet will negate the efforts of the egg sector to ensure the importance of eggs within future diets. The IEC has mobilised egg producers around the world and encouraged them to participate in the global conversation so that their voices are heard.

Zimbabwe Herd Book

The Mashona Cattle Society held a Council meeting in Harare where a major discussion point was the tick situation and the multiplicity of diseases arising from tick infestations. Dipping protocols and the effective use of acaricides was also discussed. The Mashona is an exceptional indigenous breed, hardy, fertile and well known for its mothering and survival abilities. It is heartening to record increased interest in the Mashona.
